NO DONNYBROOK PROCEEDING

But a Quiet and Orderly Dismissal of Business in the Convention—The Proceedings in Detail.

For Sheriff Isaac F. Lamoreaux, For County Clerk Frank D. Eddy, For County Treasurer Jacob Eisenhardt, For Register of Deeds John T. Gould, For Probate Judge Cyrus E. Perkins, For Prosecuting Attorney Alfred Wolcott, For Circuit Court Commissioner Charles W. McGill, James A. Coy, For County Judge Dr. M. H. Danforth, For County Surveyor Theodore O. Williams, For Grand Jurors.

One of the most enthusiastic and harmonious county conventions ever held in this city was called to order in the Lincoln Republican club rooms by Chairman L. M. Sellers, of the republican county committee, yesterday morning at 10:15. Secretary George Bunnell read the call for the convention and Mr. Sellers called the Hon. T. D. Gilbert to the chair as the temporary presiding officer. Upon taking his position Mr. Gilbert said he would not detain the delegates with a speech, as the time would necessarily be consumed by the business of the convention.

The announcement that Mr. Gilbert had been selected to preside was received with applause. S. P. Hicks, of Lowell, was chosen temporary secretary.

Committee Appointed.
The Hon. E. M. Barnard, of Grand Rapids, moved that a committee of three be appointed on permanent organization and order of business by the chair, and the following committee was appointed: The Hon. E. M. Barnard, the Rev. J. T. Husted and the Hon. Neal McMillan.

On motion of Nelson B. Rich, of Oakfield, the following credentials were received with applause: Nelson B. Rich, Dr. Henry E. Locher and Rhos Page.

Burch moved that each representative district outside of the city elect eleven delegates and the city district twenty-five delegates to each convention. RAVAGES OF CATARRH
IT AFFECTS THE ENTIRE SYSTEM.
Attacking the Mucus Surfaces and the Vital Parts—A Brief Lecture Showing the Dangers of the Disease.

The advertising of the physicians of the Copeland Medical Institute has been a revelation to the people of Grand Rapids, as it shows by the fact that more people have been treated at that institute during the past three weeks than have ever come under the practice of any physician in this city.

The following brief lecture on catarrh will be of interest to everybody who suffers from a disease of the nose, throat or lungs:

Course of Catarrh.
If those persons familiar with the anatomy of the upper part of the throat, the back portion of the nose, the middle ear and the appendix, would remember how the delicate mucous membrane envelopes these organs continuously, and how inflammation of this membrane extends from one part to the other, it would be found that the disease would be a continuous and apparently how a simple catarrh of the nose or of the throat, starting at its original point at the base of the nose, and extending upwards, the upper part of the throat, right back of the throat, extends upwards into the ear through the eustachian tube, causing ringing and roaring noises, partial or complete deafness, discharge, etc. Moving on up to the eye, and its appendages, the lacrimal duct, it causes the most intense pain at times, intolerance to light, granulation, sore lids, conjunctivitis, coritis, scleritis, iritis, etc., often ending in severe ulceration and destruction of the eye.

The Starting Point.
It has been stated above that the original starting point of catarrh was immediately back of the soft palate at the junction of the back portion of the nose and the upper part of the throat. All experienced nose and throat specialists know that to be fact, and that is a pathological reason for this. The two mucus surfaces at the head lie in close contact with each other, and this contact results in the secretions dropping from the upper and back part of the head into the dry up into little holes. The secretions, which are constantly being secreted, find their way into the dry up into little holes. The secretions, which are constantly being secreted, find their way into the dry up into little holes.

Other Symptoms.
The alimentary tract, consisting of the mouth, esophagus, stomach and bowels, also frequently participates in catarrh, and the secretions dropping from the upper and back part of the head into the dry up into little holes. The secretions, which are constantly being secreted, find their way into the dry up into little holes.
